Dialogue 1

Jerry: Hey, Mom!

Mom: Morning Jerry. Are you hungry?

Jerry: Yeah, I'm starving!

Mom: Look, I got your favorite cereal. Would you like some?

Jerry: Gee, thanks Mom. Could I have some strawberries, too?

Mom: Here you go!

Dialogue 3

Kathy: Angela, Ninno! Breakfast's ready!

Angela: Wow! It looks great!

Kathy: Thanks. So... this is a traditional American breakfast, like I promised, with sausages, fried potatoes, pancakes, muffins, scrambled eggs...

Ninno: That looks like a lot! Could I just have two slices of bacon and some scrambled eggs?

Kathy: Sure. What about you Angela?

Angela: Well, I think I'd like a sausage and a piece of toast...

Kathy: Sure. Help yourself! And have some fried potatoes too. You'll love them!

Dialogue 2

Suzy: Bye Dad, I'm off!

Dad: Hey, hey, hey, Suzy, wait a minute. Don't skip breakfast again!

Come on! How about a bagel?

Suzy: Oh, OK, but just a half... and, er... I'll have some orange juice.

Dad: Sure... Here you go.

Dialogue 4

Josh: Morning Mom! Morning Dad! Breakfast is ready!

Josh's Mom: Josh, you cooked breakfast. That's really nice of you!

Josh: Yep, and I made your favorite: pancakes with maple syrup.

Josh's Mom: Great!

Josh: And what would you like to drink? Tea or coffee?

Josh's Mom: Er... I think I'll have a cup of tea.

Josh's Dad: And I'll have a cup of coffee please.

Josh: It'll be ready in a minute.

NOT JUST A RESTAURANT BUT A WAY OF LIFE
620 SLIGO AVENUE, SILVER SPRING, MD 20910

Why So Many Diners Look Like Train Cars

(from <https://www.atlasobscura.com>)

Often, they traveled by rail and were built that way too.

In the early 20th century, Americans were hungry for a quick bite. Yet long hours and late nights made going home to eat difficult. Through that, entrepreneurs saw an opportunity. It might come as a surprise to know that all aspiring restaurateurs had to do to fill this demand was to order a pre-made diner, modular and modern, often looking rather like a train car. It would even likely arrive by train.

On the rails, dining cars were setting the standard for food service on the move. Train historian Joe Welsh describes “a traditional [dining car]” as consisting of a “long ‘tunnel’ of tables and chairs.”

Tiny lunch wagons couldn’t accommodate the demand for fast, tasty meals. So manufacturers began building shippable, train-like “dining cars,” which people had shortened to “diners” by the mid-1920s.

As with train cars, diners were manufactured with mobility in mind. Trains took on a chrome, streamlined look in the 1930s, epitomized by the glorious design of the 1934 Burlington Zephyr train. Diners followed suit. Roland Stickey, a New York inventor and designer, dreamed up the Sterling Streamliner diner model for the J.B. Judkins Company of Massachusetts. It looked so much like a train that “[only] the tracks and the passenger cars were missing,” writes roadside culture historian Michael Karl Witzel. With its convenient shape and cutting-edge look, similar designs soon were shipped across the country.
